Waist Deep in Black Water

By John Lane

University of Georgia Press. Paperback. Book Condition: New. Paperback. 200 pages. Dimensions: 8.4in. x 5.2in. x 0.7in. John Lane has scaled a granite dome in the Suriname rain forest and waded past cottonmouths in the heart of a Florida cypress swamp. He has shadowed crocodiles in a Yucatn mangrove thicket and paddled the rapids of North Carolinas Tuckaseegee River in search of a drowned kayaker. Waist Deep in Black Water offers a collection of Lanes own writings that range from wilderness exploration, to conservation issues, to explorations of family history in Spartanburg, South Carolina. Lanes trek to the Medicine Wheel National Historic Landmark in Wyoming becomes an occasion to draw connections between religion, sexuality, and mountain lore. A hike into Kentukeys Red River Gorge prompts a meditation on the words and spirit of Wendell Berry, who helped prevent the gorge from being dammed. Some of Lanes writings are set closer to home, where the South Carolina hills meet the Blue Ridge. In Something Rare as a Dwarf-Flowered Heartleaf, Lane recounts his campaign to stop the development of a woodland area within Spartanburgs city limits. Family issues also surface, as in Confluence: Pacolet River. Here Lane kayaks through country where his family...
