Outskirts Press. Paperback. Book Condition: New. Paperback. 224 pages. Dimensions: 9.1in. x 6.1in. x 0.7in. Growing up in a family of ten children during the Vietnam War despite the economic disadvantage, Dao wants to go abroad to study a new culture, and new industrial technology in hope of changing the family hardship, and to show her rebellion against her mothers unspoken rigid rule. Dao believes that if she does well academically she'll have a scholarship for an education abroad to fulfill her dream. She surrounds herself with a group of selected friends, Thuy, Ha, and Linh, who have the same goal in life, supporting her mentally to reach to her goal. She dreams of going to a country that will provide her a better life with a freedom that she can make her own choice in any circumstance without the guilt of disappointing her parents. But her plan is dramatically changed right after the Saigon Fall, her Father was sent to the re-education camp a hundred miles away from home in the mountain area away from his family, and his comfortable, familiar life. Dao gets accepted into the college of her choice in spite of her father's background with the new regime, condemned by the current communist government. Is there a light at the end of this tunnel? She is young and naive with the outcome of war, she's optimistic about her future with the new regime. What is it that she is so bound to the call of a better life ignoring the possibility of dying at sea, and throwing away her very first accomplishment with the new government system in her home land? Is it her adventure-mind or the wish of the father that she takes an Unknown Journey to America to conquer again all the odds to live...
