After this discovery there was an arrangement. Mr. Regniati was allowed a small farm-house in the country, on condition of his not wasting money upon it, and only taking to it as a recreation, while the greater portion of his time he would be, henceforth, in honour bound to dedicate to his Art. The Signor accepted these terms. In six years time he had got as far as the third pair of A History. 103 knees, --Juno s, --and had obtained the first prize for pigs, and the second for bullocks, at a County Show. This success lured him on to his ruin. At the expiration of ten years, Venus had a head on her shoulders, and he had almost lost his own. There had been years of disease among the cattle, insects in the turnips, and rottenness in the heart of his mangels; his expenses had become enormous, the Inspector of Nuisances had complained of the state of the drains round and about his farm, his oxen had strayed, two bulls had got loose and had maimed several people for life, whom he had to pension as long as they were unable to work, --and their inability to work appeared to increase with the duration of the pension. In fact Mr. Regniati s model farm promised to eventuate in a gigantic failure. At this crisis Madame stepped in and saved the citadel. She simply got rid, sur-le-champ, of the live-stock, man and beast. Then...
